Eulogy

Irma Petersen Creaux was born the first of twin daughters to the late Theodore and Floricia Quetel on November 16, 1930.

After completing the sixth grade at Washington School, she left school to seek employment in the work field to help with providing for her younger sisters and brothers.

She married Donald Petersen on January 9, 1950 and bore him one daughter and three sons. After Donald died, she later became involved with William Creaux and was married on July 24, 1966, he raised her last son as his own.

She was afflicted with troubled knees and had gone through a series of operations to enable her to walk. She bore this cross for several years until therapy became unbearable and decided she would have it no more.

Her faithful companion and husband, William, chose to keep her at home and attended to her every need until at the end of human endurance, and on a most appropriate day, July 4, she set her vigilant companion William, affectionately known as "Bab-Bap", free and her soul took flight. Her journey has ended.

She will be missed by family and friends. May her soul rest in peace.
