EULOGY

To some, she was known simply as Louise, to others whom she attended while a nurse, she was known as Mrs. Jackson. However, all who knew her or came in contact with her, knew of the tremendous love and compassion she shared with all. She was known and loved by thousands and thousands throughout her life-time.

If we were to look at the Holy Bible in John 3:16, it says in part, "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son." Should we attempt to measure the amount of love spoken of in the above verse of scripture, the task would be impossible to the human mind. So it is with the love Louise O. Jackson shared with all whom she came in contact with. How could one measure the amount of love she shared when someone, sick in bed, would have her in attendance all day and then go and put in a night's work at the Hospital, and do this for thirty days straight. How could you measure the amount of compassion she displayed, when she would hurt as much as a friend did and her heart would pain as much as the other or she shed tears even as another did. Compassion we know is genuinely sharing in the hurts of others.

Love, kindness, compassion were very much a part of her life as was doing the best job possible in her chosen field of nursing or as in the excellent job she did in being a mother. Nor did she wait until the middle age of her life to demonstrate her tremendous qualities alluded to above, for she started out at the tender age of 13 or 14 and continued right up until the day she died.

If it is true indeed that when we do unselfishly for others as she has done all of her life, then indeed Honor and Glory has certainly been brought to God. It can be said of Louise O. Jackson that "Her cup runneth over with the blessings of the almighty God."

She can now relish those blessings even better and have much to add to her mansion that her Savior has prepared for her.
